Profile

David Pentlow is of counsel in M&R's New York office and member of the firm's Corporate, M&A, Securities & Real Estate Practice Group. In that capacity, he represents private equity, real estate and hedge funds and other investors, financial institutions and issuers (from start-ups to established public companies). David does so in connection with a host of matters—securities offerings, mergers & acquisitions, lending transactions, regulatory compliance and fund launches, among them.

Boasting a particular expertise in fund formation and securities work, David's portfolio of representative matters also includes structuring special purpose acquisition companies (SPACS) and new onshore and offshore investment products; handling real estate joint ventures and transactions involving REIT's and operating partnership units; and M&As. Likewise, he advises clients concerning reorganizations and debt restructurings and a range of general corporate matters and agreements.
